

GOEBEL'S TREACHERY.

The Story of His Betrayal of An Old Soldier.

Captain Stone Tells of the Agreement Made Between the Two.

Kenton "Boss" Goes Back on all the Pledges He Made.

Capt. W. J. Stone appears not in the least backward about telling just what took place with Wm. Goebel who is now the nominee of the Democrats for governor. Capt. Stone's account, following up that of former congressman, W. C. Owens, places Goebel positively in the unenviable attitude of having taken the nomination by force after having pledged his votes to Capt. Stone for the nomination. To this he had to break promises of a nature that even politicians have heretofore bound themselves to respect.

In a letter given publication last week Capt. Stone goes into details regarding the double dealing of Goebel, and they seem to defy an answer. This letter was received by Cicero T. Sutton, editor of the Owensboro Inquirer yesterday.

The letter follows:
"Sturgis, Ky., July 5, 1899.—C. T. Sutton, Owensboro, Ky.:—I thank you for defending me against the unscrupulous gang you have to contend with in this matter. I did not misunderstand the terms of the agreement between Senator Goebel and myself. The agreement as to the temporary organization was carried out. When it came to permanent organization there was no agreement. I notified Mr. Goebel, through his friend, Mr. Hines, that I was going to name the permanent officers of the convention. This was on Friday, June 23. At 12 o'clock on that day Mr. James M. Richardson, of Glasgow, came to my room and said Mr. Goebel wanted an interview with me.

"I told Mr. Richardson I would see Mr. Goebel at any time and anywhere. Mr. Richardson said he would arrange for Goebel and myself to meet at 2 p. m. At 1:45 p. m. Mr. Richardson returned and said Mr. Goebel had declined to see me. I told him all right, but to say to Mr. Goebel that I could and would name the permanent officers of the convention. "At 3 p. m. I went to the convention hall, and as I started up the stairway Mr. Urey Woodson caught me by the arm and said Senator Goebel was there and wanted to see me, that he was just starting to my room. I came down the steps and met Mr. Goebel in the east end of the lower hall of the building. Mr. Goebel insisted that the temporary organization of the convention be allowed to become permanent. I was equally insistent on a change, which I could accomplish by my friends in the committee on organization joining with Hardin's friends in the committee. Senator Goebel at once said: 'I can make either you or Hardin the nominee of this convention; I prefer to make you the nominee; let the temporary organization become permanent and I will have all my instructed votes given to you, and thus make you the nominee. "I agreed to it and went at once to my friends in the committee of organization and asked them to vote in committee to let the organization and asked them to vote in committee to let the temporary organization become permanent, and they did so vote.

"On Saturday, when Gen. Hardin withdrew from the race, great excitement prevailed. Many of my friends demanded that Mr. Goebel keep his promise and turn his votes to me. I am informed that some of his friends urged him to keep his promise. He asked for ten minutes to consider the matter, then asked for five minutes. Then one of his friends went to him and then came back to me and said Mr. Goebel was coming over to see me. He came and asked me if I were nominated and elected if I would allow him to name the men to fill two places under me. I told him I would.

"He asked me if I would put it in writing. I said no.

"He said: 'Wait, till I consult my friends.'

Modest Women

Modesty in women is a charm that beauty and wit is no wonder that women afflicted with the delicate female ailments peculiar to their sex shrink from personal examinations by male physicians! I said, 'No, keep your promise now.' "He said, 'I will do it; just wait till I can walk over to my seat.' "He walked away but never returned. That's the whole story, so far as he is concerned.

"The reason heard his friends were so solicitous about the permanent organization was the fear if a new man was put in the chair the reports of the committee would be reconsidered and the state organization reconstructed.

Very truly,
"W. J. Stone."

If this is not enough to make Goebel's friends ashamed of him, they have certainly gone through a crucial test.

HOT SHOT

Poured From the Guns by W. C. Owen.

He Corroborates the Statements Made by Stone.

Paints a Vivid Picture of the Policemen's Convention.

It Was Run by a Chief Actor in a Bloody Mountain Fued.

In the Louisville Post of Monday after the following from Hon. W. C. Owens, which does not require comment:

Georgetown, Ky., July 3.—Will you kindly allow me to use your columns for an explanation to my personal friends? They know that for months I was the earnest advocate of the claims of Captain Stone for the Democratic nomination for Governor; that I went to the Louisville convention to serve his interests, and that before that convention ended I was working in Gen. Hardin's behalf. Prising above all things the respect of my friends, I want them to know the reasons that controlled me.

When I reached Louisville I was informed by Captain Stone that he had made a combination with Mr. Goebel. I asked him the extent of the combination and was informed that it was to organize the convention and that whenever there was a contest the Hardin delegates were to be turned out of the convention.

The statement that two men seeking the high office of Governor of a once justly proud commonwealth had deliberately entered into such a compact to deprive the people of their representation was so astonishing that I could scarcely credit the information. My first impression was to inform Captain Stone that I could no longer be his friend, but a moment's reflection convinced me that it would be better to wait and see if their compact could not be broken. I labored incessantly to that end, and on Thursday night at midnight, had the pleasure of seeing Captain Stone get into the carriage and drive to the Galt House to notify Mr. Goebel that his (Stone's) friends would not sustain such an agreement and that their contract was at an end.

This condition of affairs continued until 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, when Captain Stone went to the convention hall, where the Committee on Credentials was in session. I was talking with Captain Stone when some one approached and told him Mr. Goebel wanted to see him. He left me and went to where Mr. Goebel was standing in the dark under the stairway. Five minutes later he returned and said: "Mr. Goebel says that if I will carry out my original agreement he will nominate me in the morning. Can I afford to refuse the nomination?" I immediately told him if he purchased the nomination at such a price the people ought to beat him at the polls by 50,000 majority. I said to him also, that if Mr. Goebel had made such a promise he had no idea of keeping it; he is only endeavoring to get you to let your hands this afternoon that he may out your throat in the morning. Stone replied: "I can't believe that he is so unscrupulous as that." Then I said: "The your hands now and be convinced tomorrow." It is needless to say that he was thoroughly convinced before the next morning had gone by, but it was too late—he was in Mr. Goebel's power, who simply laughed at him for his credulity.

When Capt. Stone informed me that he would carry out his agreement with Goebel, I notified him that our relations were at an end. That agreement was carried out by the combined votes of Stone and Goebel, every contest was decided in their favor, except two, where the steal was so palpable and outrageous that some of their own forces revolted against the crime and forced them to forego their purpose. More than 150 delegates opposed to Goebel were turned out of the convention or refused admission because of this agreement, and their places filled with men, most of whom were ready to do his bidding. The combination put in the chair a man who was willing to do anything his master told him, who would submit to the convention no motion made by the opposition, allow no appeal from any decision, and surrounded by long lines of uniformed policemen, while as many more of the tools of the city administration in citizen's clothing filled the hall ready to obey Goebel's orders, throttle the convention and forced it either to nominate Goebel or stay there all summer. In my judgment from the moment they secured the permanent organization and had the entire police force of Louisville placed at their command, no other result was possible, no other nomination would ever have been allowed or announced.

When the convention adjourned it was found that Goebel had placed at the head of your State Central Committee one of the chief actors in a bloody mountain feud that disgraced our state and crimsoned the soil of Rowan county with the blood of her citizens. Can anyone doubt Goebel's purpose to inaugurate a reign of terror in the state and make every Democrat his abject slave? Kentucky is on trial. What will she do about it? We boast much of our manhood and our honor and look down on our colder blooded brethren of the North with the idea that they care more for business than for such things. Will we be able to compare favorably with them after the November election? A few years ago when New York was a close and doubtful State a Republican candidate secured the nomination for Governor by fraudulent agencies, but which in comparison with the methods pursued in our late convention were highly honorable. The people of that State beat him by 200,000 majority. Will our people display as high a sense of honor? Of course, most of those who see office will cry out to stand by the nominee, no matter how the nomination was secured, but surely the people who only do the voting and who do not want or expect office will not consent to this great crime against manhood and free government.

We have fallen upon perilous times, indeed. The Courier-Journal, long cherished by many as the representative of our social order, lured by the hope of public printing and other patronage that will come to it through Goebel's triumph, has become the avowed champion of fraud, force and duplicity, while it holds its peculiar champion before the young men of Kentucky as an example for them to imitate. God help the State if our young men yield to such infamous advice and consent to follow such an example.

As a citizen and a democrat I shall not be deterred by the boast of the machine men that they will steal the election, no matter how the people vote. I never scratched a democrat ticket in my life; never voted for a republican; but I realize that if the Democratic party does not hold in its ranks sufficient honest vitality to punish and rebuke the great wrong and save the State from the threatened danger, it ought to perish. To help rebuke that wrong and save for the future our party, I intend to vote for the Republican candidate for Governor this fall, and I appeal to the conservative, the intelligent and the honest manhood of our State to do the same, and make the majority too big to steal, and by perfect organization make it dangerous to attempt to steal it. Yours,

W. C. OWENS.

THEY MUST ANSWER.

Fordsville Trustees Will Have to Appear Before Superintendent at Hartford.

The Fordsville school case was concluded before Judge Owen late Friday evening and the injunction in the case of Dr. D. M. Matthews and others against Superintendent Rogers was dissolved. Judge Owen said he thought the superintendent ought not to have judicial functions, but that the court of appeals had held otherwise and he would dissolve the injunction. The summons of the superintendent against Matthews, Miller and Mitchell to show cause why they should not be removed will now be made, and as they will not answer, they will be removed. The attorneys for Matthews, etc., will institute other proceedings, and the end is not yet sighted.

Fordville has a fine school building which the people are anxious to see built up as a first-class graded school, while they claim that the other side want to keep it down to a country school. The community is very much worked up over the matter, and there has been more than one fight about it.

THRIVING BURG.

Irvington Continues To Get A Hustle On Herself.

Items of Interest Concerning Building Operations There.

The thriving town of Irvington continues to flourish like a green bay tree. The building boom which started a year ago is as active today as it was at its inception.

W. E. Brown has greatly increased the area of his store. The carpenters are now at work adding an additional story. The front is being extended. Handsome, modern plate glass show windows will be added and the structure will not only be a thing of beauty but it will be modern in every respect.

The city of Irvington is now blessed with a handsome family grocery and drug store conducted by R. P. Higgins. The fixtures and stock of the two departments would be a credit to any city in the land of 10,000 inhabitants.

Austin Popham's drug store has been completed and is a beauty. The stock and the arrangements are up-to-date, modern and artistic. Austin has displayed splendid taste and good business sense, and is meeting with deserved success.

C. C. Smith has added largely to his hotel and now has a building that would attract attention anywhere. He has recently put down a fine brick side walk that is an evidence of his enterprise and local pride.

The Farm Journal is unlike any other paper; for one thing it prints no quick medical advertisements; for another it takes five-year subscriptions and gets the paper to its subscribers the full time if they are anywhere on this planet, even if they move two or three times; if they die their heirs get it. Now we are going to send the Farm Journal for the balance of 1899 and all of 1900, 1901, 1902 and 1903, nearly five years, to every advance paying subscriber to the Breckenridge News but better speak quick, as we have only a limited number Farm Journals to offer on these terms.

A Delightful Occasion.

Last Thursday evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Hendry was made very happy by the presence of a merry throng of young people who were being entertained in honor of Mrs. Hendry's sister, Miss Ida Gardner. About ten o'clock the party repaired to the dining room, where an elegant supper was served. The table was decorated with myrtle, and a handsome bouquet in the center completed its loveliness.

Mrs. Hendry surely knows how to entertain and is quite a favorite with the young folks. Those present from a distance were Mrs. C. E. Overstreet, of Louisville, Mr. Brandenburg, of Vine Grove, and Misses Kate and Hilda Mattingly, of Woodland.

GREAT INVENTION.

How Squire Mattingly Trains His Beans as They Should go.

Charles Mattingly, Hardinsburg's genial magistrate, possesses the gift of ingenuity. His bean-pole system has acquired more than local fame. Charles is a great lover of leguminous food and this year planted quite an extensive bean patch. Instead of putting in the time honored bean poles he planted big posts to which wires were fastened and on these wires he placed V shaped wires, hung upside down so that they would reach to the bean hills. On these he trained the vines and when they are matured all he will have to do is cut the vines take the wires off the line and store and thresh his crop. Some of his envious neighbors say that this is the invention of a lazy man.

BICYCLE

Elopes to Stephensport With Charlie Hall's Wheel.

Bike Was Recovered But the Robber Escaped.

Last week a slick youth named Underwood, who claimed Henderson as his home, went to the Barnes House and engaged board.

While there he made the acquaintance of Charley Hall and also took a liking to the latter's bicycle.

One day he went to the shops and asked Charley to lend him his wheel to ride to Stephensport. Charley refused the loan but the fellow went to the Barnes House and took it anyhow.

He rode the wheel to Stephensport and offered the wheel for sale to C. C. Lewis, the agent for enough money to pay car fare to West Point.

Mr. Lewis had sold the wheel to Hall and recognized it. He took the wheel away from the thief and the latter becoming frightened, boarded a passenger train for Louisville and made his escape.

DIAMOND DUST.

Cloverport Sends Two Teams Home In Defeat.

Fourth-of-July Victories for the Home Boys.

Victory perched on the banner of the Cloverport base ball team in the double header game of July 4th.

The Glendeanes and Cannellons both went down in defeat before Heyser's Perfectos and Pitcher Burch's beautiful glass arm.

The attendance at both games was very large and the rooters had the time of their lives giving the horse laugh to their visitors.

The first game in the morning resulted in the following score:

Cloverport	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	0
Glendean	0	3	4	0	0	0	0	0	0	0

Allen was in the box for Cloverport, and struck out two, while Wells, pitching for Glendean, struck out two. Will Allen made the largest batting record, making seven base hits.

The game was rather ragged at times but some brilliant plays were made by both sides.

L. Vessels, of the Glendean's, captured the Cloverport people. He is a magnificent ball player, good humored and a perfect gentleman. Everybody down here will give him the glad hand when he again visits this place.

AFTERNOON GAME.

The afternoon game proved to be a slaughter of the lambs by Cloverport. The Cannellon boys started in by playing snappy ball. They put up a beautiful practice game and the first three innings promised as pretty ball as has ever been seen here.

In the first Cannellon scored once and then compelled Cloverport to mark up a goose-egg. In the next two innings both sides blanked.

After the third, however, the visitors fell down. Kingham, who was at the box for Cannellon, proved an easy mark for Heyser's Perfectos. They found the sphere and knocked it all over the field. The score was as follows:

Cannellon	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	0
Burch struck out 11 and Kingham 4.

NOTES.

Heyser's boys are proving to be the champion amateur team of the Ohio Valley.

The Leitchfield-Hardinsburg game at Hardinsburg, Monday, resulted in a victory for Leitchfield. Score 13 to 10.

That boy Burch is a beaut at twirling the sphere. He's got a glass arm.

Joe Seymour is a regular stone wall at second. Those who go up against him generally fall down.

Steve Hall is making a good success as manager and will undoubtedly make the Cloverport boys famous.

The Cannellons will play the Cloverports Friday. Game will be called at 2 o'clock.

R. N. Hudson's up-to-date dwelling is about completed and ready for occupancy. It is a class by itself and is by all odds the most modern and most attractive building in the city. The plans were drawn by Mr. Hudson and the work was done under his supervision. It is a monument to his skill and taste.

The new Heston-Willis building is rapidly approaching completion. This handsome brick structure adds greatly to the business-like appearance of Wall street. When the plate glass windows are put in, it will be ready for occupancy.

The stone flat occupied by George Weatherholt is being repainted and a new brick pavement is being put down. When all repairs are completed it will be a first class place.

Pluto Robertson's Wild Ride For Life.

An exciting runaway occurred on Wall street Monday afternoon. The horses attached to Charles Reidel's wagon became frightened and started down the street at a break neck pace. "Pluto" Robertson, driving Vest's delivery wagon was in front. The runaways threatened to run him down. He drove as recklessly as a Roman charioteer to get out of their way. He succeeded. At the end of the bridge the wagon attached to the runaway team turned over and they stopped near the Presbyterian church. Sulzer's delivery wagon met with the same experience as Vest's. No damage was done.
